

I am a business development manager. I am Rendell.

I thrive on solving problems and challenges. Every business opportunity presented keeps me motivated.

Business development is all about building relationships and the relentless pursuit to achieve your goal. In my role, I work closely with both internal and external partners to identify business opportunities and provide win-win solutions to clients, delivering excellence in execution.

I believe we will be able to achieve a balance between mismatched expectations through listening and understanding, without compromising on objectives which are unique to both stakeholders.
